THE SETTING

Used in connection with the PEERLESS GRATE consists of five pieces of tile, which rest upon the outer or stationary frame of the grate. They are so constructed as to admit of their being set only at a certain angle which we have determined as best adapted for the proper radiation of the heat. The back tile "C" has a series of notches or openings at the top through which a current of hot air is admitted to the rear of the fire chamber for the more thorough combustion of the smoke and gases. Through the same openings, the dust, caused by the agitation of the grate, is discharged into the fire chamber, passing up the flue "F" in the rear of the tile, thus effecting perfect cleanliness.

Grate will be sent upon

THE STANDARD GRATE.

YOUR attention is respectfully called to the STANDARD SETTING, feeling satisfied that upon examination you will be convinced of all that is claimed for it, and that it stands far in advance of any and all other Grates in point of excellence, simplicity, appearance, comfort, cleanliness, and economy. Some of the advantages over other grates are:

- 1st. The arch connected with the tile rest or support prevents the burning of the enamel on the upper part of the grate frame.
- 2d. The damper is so arranged that it can be held at any desired point, enabling one to regulate the draft, which gives the fire place INTENSE HEATING CAPACITY, while the combustion is always under absolute control, and the strictest economy in the use of coal insured.
- 3d. When the fire place is not in use, the damper can be closed, thereby avoiding the nuisance of stuffing the flue with rags and paper to keep the soot from soiling carpets, etc.
- 4th. The jamb plates are set so as to leave an air space in the wall opposite the basket, thereby preventing the burning or defacing of the frame.
- 5th. The grate basket has a corrugated bottom, forming air passages or ducts under the fuel, thereby producing a more perfect combustion, and will, from its peculiar construction, free itself from ashes more readily than any other grate.
- 6th. The basket hangs on the jamb plates two inches back of the grate frame opening, thereby obviating the annoyance of smoke and ashes from side drafts, and enables the summer front to be put in at any time without removing the basket.
- 7th. The ash screen is hinged to the basket and never needs removing while in use, and effectually hides all ashes from view.
- 8th. Since our Mr. D. K. Innes invented the Radiant Grate, we have found that to the many good qualities possessed by that grate, it was yet susceptible of further improvements, which we have accomplished in the STANDARD GRATE. See page 69.
